
RELIGIONS OF ALL NATIONS.

Sunday Entertainment by the Theosophical Lotus Circle.

The children of the Theosophical Lotus Circle, or Sunday school, gave an entertainment yesterday afternoon at the hall of the Theosophical Society, 144 Madison Avenue. The feature of the entertainment was a play, intended to remove from the minds of children religious bigotry and intolerance.

Miss Virginia Fernandez, who represented Wisdom, called to her, one by one, the Religions of different nations, which were represented by girls and boys, who bore silken banners with symbols appropriate to the religion personified.

Each child, when called by Wisdom, recited a passage from the sacred book of the followers of the religion represented.

The drama was preceded by a prologue, recited by the children in chorus, which contained the idea of universal brotherhood. The idea of the play was, that in every religion there is some good, which should be recognized by every one.

After the drama, William Q. Judge talked to the children. He told them of the music of the spheres, which they might learn to hear if they lived rightly.

"You will find, as you grow up," he said, "a great number of religions and peoples, none of which you should despise. You must seek the good in each."

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Mayer, assisted by Miss Annie Walberg.

The New York Times

Published: January 1, 1894

Copyright © The New York Times